

Autumn Foliage

Tuesday, October 26th at 11:15 AM

Join local Teacher Naturalist, Michael Scutari for both a hands-on, and virtual trip through the forests, meadows, and roadsides of New England to discover the diverse arrays of Autumn foliage that exist in our native woody and herbaceous plants. Learn about the process of "leaf senescence" (or the turning of leaf color from green to those reds-oranges-yellows-pinks-purples), why it happens, and how some years are just better than others.
